Mint Juleps

Just about every state in Dixie had its own sacrosanct way of handling the mint, the sugar, the ice, the booze. Duels were fought. Names were called.

We've got a few classic recipes from which to choose. See where you fall...

The Kentucky Classic

The very first Juleps were made with Brandy, but when Bourbon arrived, people looked to its home: Kentucky. This is how they enjoy it at "The Derby": Sugar, fresh mint, Bourbon, ice, and that's it.

Georgia Mint Julep

For the true sweet tooth, a refreshing recipe made for the hot Savannah nights. A large Bourbon muddled with fresh mint leaves, fresh limes & lime juice.

Mississippi Planter's Julep

Bayou residents need a little more spice. This take involves a full rocks glass of crushed ice, a very small amount of white sugar, mint, and a little nutmeg. A winter-time belly warmer.

Missouri Julep

A throwback to the earlier days, Missourians still cut their Bourbon with a touch of Brandy, along with the mint and sugar. It produces a tad sweeter, more mellow drinking experience, and is best over un-cracked ice.

The Old Fashioned Julep

A blend of two of the oldest cocktails around. Like the old-fashioned, a small squeeze of fresh orange and a long, thin orange rind add history and character. Devilishly easy to have more than one...

The Bourbon

Our standard bourbon is Jim Beam, but you can enjoy many of our premium bourbons as Juleps. We recommend staying away from the top shelf stuff though, which doesn't need any help going down by itself.

The Great Bourbon List

As unique and important to the South as malted whisky is to Scotland. Bourbon, the American Whiskey, has a history stretching back to the early 19th century. Made of corn mash, it produces a sweeter, more mellow taste than Scotch or Irish Whiskeys, though every small batch Bourbon is just as distinctive and unique as the best Single Malts. So try one and enjoy a taste of the real South. Our selection of the finest Bourbons changes with availability; so please check with your server first. For tasting notes, please ask a server for our descriptions, or just find John and he'll talk your ear off about them. Enjoy!!
